DURST ORGANIZATION MARKETING CAMPAIGN KICKOFF

April 11, 1133 Avenue of the Americas

More than 150 real estate luminaries including Tara Stacom of Cushman & Wakefield and, of course, Douglas Durst himself, gathered last week to kick off a glitzy marketing campaign for 114 West 47th Street and 1133 Avenue of the Americas, a building heavy with limestone and modernist design. The biggest spectacle, however, may have been the striking models who lined the route between the two buildings, clad in white and baring umbrellas as brokers made the trek between the two properties. The Durst Organization-owned buildings are currently being marketed by an in-house team, according to a spokesman.
